Synopsis In mid-nineteenth century, a young lady arrives at the assembly of a village, to apply for marriage to a humble rural farmer. Her new husband is a good man, hardworking and caring, but he is also avaricious and tyrannical, and deeply jealous. Later, her husband's best friend and business partner, a male heir with a powerful mentor, begins to court her, and she agrees to marry him. The husband, left by his wife for her lover, asks his friend to dispose of her and he does, but the husband, after five years of silence, sends a group of soldiers to the house to capture the lover, who is hiding with his wife. On seeing his wife about to be executed, he fights them off and he shoots himself to death. Later that day, the wife returns to her village alone.
